

Margaret Pearce Residency, UMaine Digital Humanities Lab

Workshop

We invite undergraduate and graduate students with an interest in mapping and/or writing to attend an all-day workshop with Dr. Margaret Pearce, a Maine-based cartographer and Citizen Potawatomi tribal member, on January 24th and 31st this coming spring semester.

Wed, Jan 24: 9 am–4 pm
Wed, Jan 31: 9 am–4 pm
(Lunch will be provided.)

These all-day workshops are for students curious to explore the relationship between cartography and writing: both mapping as a form of writing, and mapping as a way of drawing out the spatial relationships in linear narrative. If the idea of mixing maps and writing sounds like fun, this workshop is for you.

Part of the 2023-24 MHC Symposium, "Rivers"

The University of Maine is an equal opportunity/affirmative action institution.

The January 24th workshop is for writers. The January 31st workshop is for cartography, GIS, and other geospatial students, including students who have taken courses in digital humanities or geovisualization.

The workshops do not involve software. We will work on paper.

Students in both workshops are asked to bring one page of written text (poem, report, story, description) that includes a river (any kind of river). The river does not have to be the focus, but it does have to be present. The page can be taken from a longer work.

Presentation

Further activities will include a public presentation by Margaret Pearce on February 7th about her own work. To learn more about Margaret, see her website studio1to1.net.

For information, or to register for one or both of the seminars, please contact Beth Wiemann at the McGillicuddy Humanities Center, bwiemann@maine.edu.

For specific questions about the workshop, please feel free to email Margaret Pearce at margaret@studio1to1.net.
